Early on in the design process the talented team at Octagon began to draw up a wish list of interior features that would set this property apart – even amongst the grand surroundings of this famous private estate. High on the list was a dramatic staircase with the power to enchant any prospective buyer, and a master-bathroom with materials that could blend classic style and quality with high performance.

David Smith at Octagon comments “With any luxury property first impressions are essential – buyers need to be blown away. Once the plans began to take shape we knew we could rely on New Image Stone to supply us with the perfect products tailored to our bespoke designs. Furthermore, they would ensure that each product would be fitted by craftsmen with an intimate knowledge of stone and the skills to bring out its best features.”

Turning to long-time supplier New Image Stone for ideas and inspiration, the vision became a reality as the detailed designs took shape with a combination of products and materials for the different areas including stunning marble, granite and Portuguese limestone.

The dramatic limestone tiled entrance hall has a glass panelled staircase perfectly complemented by the stunning matching limestone steps. Moving upstairs to the first and second floors, there are six large double bedrooms, all with en-suite bathrooms that come complete with brushed granite accessories. The Master suite really delivers the wow factor with its black glass panelled bath, giant glass enclosed shower zone and marble wall panels sourced by New Image Stone.

Different stone types are suitable for different applications and New Image Stone were able to offer expert advice on the right stone for each particular element of the project.
